ABSENCE OF ANNIE NEELEY

Prevents the Closing of Her Father's $25,000 Estate in Waukegan

BEEN GONE FOR TEN YEARS

Relatives Seek to Find Her to Tell Her
She is One of Heirs to the $25,000
Estate of John Neeley

An estate of $25,000, left by John Neeley, of Waukegan, who dropped dead several weeks ago, is tied up in the Lake county court as the result of inability to locate his daughter Annie who left Waukegan many years ago and whose whereabouts have not been known for the past ten years by her relatives.

She, and her step-mother, are the only living heirs to the estate and every possible effort is being made to determine whether she is alive or not.

Miss Neeley is about forty years of age now and about five feet six inches tall. She has dark hair and it is likely tinged with gray now. Her eyes were brown. When she left there she weighed about 150 or 160 pounds.

The last heard from the woman was when she left for Boston, where she is believed to have lived for a time. Her last address there was at 20 Summer street, but efforts to trace her through that address have failed.

The woman probably does not know that her father is dead and that she is heiress to part of his estate or she would likely return at once as it is stated there is no difference between her and other relatives which would cause her to remain away.

Miss Neeley was born and raised in Waukegan and lived there most of her early life, her departure ten years ago being the first time she had ever left home for a long stay. She was well known in the city and county.

Her father was John Neeley, for years an engineer on the Northwestern railroad and later a saloon keeper at Washington and Sheridan road.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE AT PARSONAGE

Last Saturday afternoon at two thirty o'clock at the M. E. Parsonage was solemnized the marriage of Miss Edna B. Turner of Antioch and Mr. Lee J. Lamb of Chicago, Rev. F. R. McNamers performing the ceremony which made them man and wife.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Turner who reside east of town and is a well known and popular young lady with a host of friends who wish her a long life of happiness.

The groom whose home is in Chicago is a comparative stranger here but is known to be a young man of upright character and excellent habits.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamb will make their future home in Chicago.

The News joins with their many Antioch friends in extending congratulations to the happy couple.

WITH THE MOUNTAIN WHITES

Widow Looked Forward to a Period of Enjoyment—The Husband and the Mule.

A home missionary under the auspices of the American Missionary society, which has its headquarters in New York, tells the following tale of an old woman encountered during her work among the mountain whites of Saluda, N. C.

She found the old lady enjoying a comfortable pipe in front of her little fireplace. She greeted the visitors cordially, and upon their departure pressed them to call again.

"You'll always find me right here," said she, "unless I go off for a visit. Now my husband's dead I'm going to enjoy myself."

The same domestic atmosphere seemed to pervade the reply of another, whom the missionary asked if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady, "I hadn't heard o' that. Won't there be more than one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was replied.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go, for we've only got one mule, and John always has to go everywhere first."

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Beaver of Chicago Celebrate Thirteenth Anniversary

A most enjoyable party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Beaver at their home at 1750 North Adams street, Chicago, on Saturday evening of last week, the occasion being the thirteenth anniversary of their marriage.

Games of various kinds were indulged in, the most interesting of which was the game of cinch all interested joining in the friendly rivalry for the first honors.

About eleven o'clock a very substantial lunch was served by Mrs. Beaver and her able assistants. After lunch Mr. Carrington made a few remarks, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Beaver on their domestic felicity and conjugal bliss during the thirteen years of their married life. Mr. Wilkerson then gave a recitation entitled "Lucky Jim on the Ranch," which was well received. The feature of the evening was the singing of Miss Grace Enright, Miss Claudia Shaul, Mrs. Beaver, Mr. Stauter and Claire and Ernest Kelly, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Stauter. Charlie Kelly gave a very good imitation of an old country breakdown, also accompanied by Mrs. Stauter at the piano. Mr. Beaver then spoke his little piece "Ride with me in a Taxicab," which ended the program.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Carrington, Bridges, Larson, M. Kelly and Ralph Stauter, Misses Grace Enright, Josephine Lee, Amanda Gunderson, Claudia Shaul, and Cora Hagerdorn, Messrs. Robt. Kelly, Oscar Greenwald, Claire and Ernest Kelly, Frank Wilkerson and John Enright all of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. McDuff of Peoria and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly of Antioch.

The party wound up by all joining in the singing of that old time favorite, "We won't go home till Morning," after which the guests bid farewell to the host and hostess.

TO HAVE NEW QUARTERS

Antioch Electric Light Company has Leased Larger Building.

On account of their present quarters in the Haynes building being too small to accommodate the large stock of fixtures, repairs, etc., which it intends to carry, in the future the Antioch Electric Light Company has leased of W. H. Osmond his store building in the Union block on Main street, for a term of years, and are making preparations to take possession of the same the first of February.

Upon deciding to lease his building Mr. Osmond at once set about making arrangement to vacate as soon as possible and is now offering his entire stock of furniture, pianos etc., for sale at greatly reduced prices.

By this move in which Mr. Osmond retires from business Antioch is for the first time in many years unable to number a well stocked furniture store among its business places.

POISON CAUSES SERIOUS ILLNESS

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Barber of this place on Sunday received word from Chetek, Wis., stating that their youngest son, Chauncey was very ill and not expected to live.

Shortly after partaking of a hearty supper, Saturday evening he suddenly became violently ill. A physician was at once summoned and so serious did the case prove that he remained at the bedside all night and until Sunday noon. For the first three hours it was a fierce struggle with death and it was not until morning that the doctor could give any hope for his recovery and even then he pronounced the chances very small.

At first the cause of the attack was attributed to ptomaine poisoning due to eating canned salmon at supper, but this theory was soon abandoned as seven or eight different persons had also eaten of the fish and no one else was in any way effected. As near as can be ascertained the cause is now thought to be the inhaling of certain poisonous drugs which he was preparing as a medicine for stock.

At last reports Mr. Barber although quite weak is able to sit up a part of the time and is thought to be entirely out of danger.

Expert Diagnosis.

southern slave who diagnosed a boy's illness in her master's home. "It's a case of too much watermelon," she said. Thereupon she was informed with great dignity that there could be no such thing as "too much watermelon." "Well," she retorted, "then there ain't enough boy."

A ZION FANATIC IN JAIL

Those Who Know the Zion
"Dope" Profess to Recognize Prisoner

THINKS THIS AN EFFETE AGE

H. F. Weiman Says He is "Man of God"
But Circulates Obscene Literature in Rockford, Illinois

Those who know the "usual Zion City dope," profess to recognize in the central figure mentioned in the following from the Rockford Republic of Tuesday, a Zion fanatic, who besides parading the Waukegan streets and calling, "Woe to this city," is alleged to have been ordered out by the police after threatening the saloons and who afterwards was expelled from Kenosha also.

Because he thinks this an effete age and that his fellowmen are rushing headlong to perdition, H. F. Weiman, who styles himself "The Man of God," came to Rockford a few days ago and commenced a campaign of warning against present day evils, but his efforts were unappreciated, and he is now in jail on a charge of circulating obscene literature.

Weiman is one of the queerest bits of human fotsam that has drifted into Rockford in many moons. He is a six-footer with a shag, lemon-colored beard, closely cropped head, restless hazel eyes and an attire the principal features of which are a con skin cap and a gigantic pair of felt boots. At the first glance he seems more like a hardy arctic explorer than a voice in the wilderness.

He came to Rockford some days ago and inquired at police headquarters for a nights lodging. He then secured work shoveling snow, and while he labored with the shovel he reminded men in the same gang that there is a hereafter. He returned to the jail every evening as he could get no lodging, but Tuesday night did not appear at his usual hour.

During the evening chief Bergen had complaints from residents on Park avenue and elsewhere that a big stranger was accosting them and circulating literature that was not fit to read. The description seemed to tally with that of the lemon whiskered snow shoveler, and when he dropped into headquarters a little later he was searched. In his pockets were found hundreds of neatly printed cards. He admitted that he had been giving them away and admitted the obscenities, but declared that his intention was only to "save the world."

I am a man of nature; he told Chief Bergen. "I lead a sweet pure life, and have a commission from above to warn the erring human race."

He was held to the grand jury in bonds of $100.

LAKE COUNTY'S FIRST VICTIM TO CANAL PROJECT

Lake County has given its first victim to the Panama Canal project.

The unfortunate man was Thomas O'Hern, aged thirty-four years, son of John O'Hern of Libertyville, a young man who had spent most of his life in Lake County, although born in Chicago.

On February first of last year he went to Panama where he was employed in running a steam shovel. There he remained until the first of December when he returned home, sick and unable to continue his work. He entered St. Elizabeth's hospital in Chicago where he remained until his death which occurred on Monday last.

It is believed that his death was due to malarial fever which he contracted while in the south.

The remains are to be buried at Waukegan today (Thursday).

The Difference.

"John Peters isn't fit to associate with gentlemen." "Geel! What's the matter?" "He held out a card when we were playing poker last night." "So did you." "But I only held out a nine-spot. He stole an ace."—Cleveland Leader.

The End Not Favored.

Lucretia Maria Davidson, the poet, testified in the last bit of evidence she gave on earth, "Death, which once looked so dreadful to me, is now divested of all its terrors."

DIES A NATURAL DEATH

Lake County's First and Only Peat Industry is No More

FAIL TO INSPIRE INTEREST

Will Not Exploit the Big Sag Beds After All—Extensive Plant to be Built at Lakeville, Indiana

While no hurrah has been made about it, Lake county's first and only peat industry has died a quiet and natural death.

It was called the Illinois Peat Company, and planned a location at Grayslake, where an effort was made to interest the local syndicate in the proposition of making briquette.

Inquiry by a reporter showed that the enterprise has finally come to naught due to the failure of the company to interest the local people.

A big plant was planned for the making of peat bricks, which were to be sold for fuel.

The peat beds on which the company depended were those of the "Big Sag" and the main acreage of the peat is on what is known as the Shanks farm. Tests were made of the peat and it was pronounced perfectly satisfactory.

The fact that there is much peat in the county, the main beds being about Grayslake and north of Waukegan near the golf grounds has through some years past excited much interest and not a little speculation.

This is increased by the discovery of what is described as a new process to take peat of a poor or fair quality and make it into a perfect fuel. The process is an Indiana one.

During the past two years the Skokie drainage systems, the Deerfield drainage system and the network of drainage canals in the lake region or in the farming territory have practically killed off any plans to exploit the peat beds.

The new process, however, has interested students of fuels and their value to the people.

Officials of the Peat Products Company of Lima, O., have just closed a deal for the establishment of a 100,000 plant, to be located near Lakeville, Indiana, in the vicinity of South Bend.

The peat products, which include peat fuel, moss litter, gas product, fertilizer and fertilizer filler, well be manufactured from the earth in the boggy land in the vicinity of Lakeville, the promoters having already obtained leases on 1,500 acres of land.

The plant will be located on the farm of James Henson along the Vandavia tracks, the railroad company having worked untiringly for its location at this point. For the first few months twenty men will be required to operate the plant, but more will be added rapidly as the promoters, as new machinery is added to the equipment. According to officials, within a year several hundred men will be required to manufacture the products at Lakeville, resulting in a permanent boom for the village.

THE MIRROR BABY WAS CRYING

And That Seemed to Have the Desirable
Reforming Effect on the Real Child.

"It cannot be a new way to attempt to quiet a crying baby," said the young man, who couldn't be expected to know a great deal about children, "but it certainly was effective."

"The child was sitting up in a carriage red faced and bawling, with its mouth wide open and tears streaming out of the corners of its eyes. The nurse was making unavailing efforts to quiet the infant as she wheeled it along."

At a corner there was a store that had a square post in one corner of the show window. The sides of the post were covered with looking glass.

"The nurse wheeled the carriage up close to the window and the baby, still howling, got a glimpse of the image of its angry faced, wailing self in the looking glass. The effect was marvellous. The child stopped crying at once and surveyed the glass with an air almost of being ashamed. Then it broke into a smile, and when the looking glass child also laughed it waved a tiny, mittened fist and was borne away, chuckling."

"This, of course, can be explained on scientific grounds as being only a manifestation of curiosity on the part of the child, but the suddenness of the reform instituted by the mirror was impressive to those who saw it."

THOUGHT SELF UNHURT

Yet He Dies in Two Hours From Injuries Received In Side

Monday afternoon while standing on a wagon with four other employees, guiding a large piece of machinery being lowered by a crane into the wagon, at the North Shore electric plant, Grover Ackerman, aged 26, of 759 Marion street, Waukegan, was struck in the side by the bucket attached to the crane and, while he insisted he was not much hurt, he died within two hours afterwards.

Ackerman was married but leaves no children. He had worked at the plant some time and Monday was called to help the other men load on a wagon some machinery at the side of the track. The large crane used for moving coal, machinery, etc., was called into service, the machinery attached and the lifting started.

Five of the men got on the wagon to guide the machinery as it was lowered into the wagon, to have it drop in a certain position. Attached to the end of the cable on the crane, is a coal bucket as well as the hook on which the machinery is fastened, the hook being just above the bucket. The bucket as it descended is what struck Ackerman in the side. He toppled from the wagon but soon got up and said he was all right.

However the others made him keep quiet and called the ambulance and he was taken to the hospital. The accident happened at four o'clock and at a quarter after six he died. He was conscious all of the time and his death was not expected by any of the attendants.

It is believed that he sustained injuries to the spine which did not show at first.

MORE TROUBLES IN ZION

Beloved General Overseer Being Urged
as Official Company Collector

The two large corporations which have entered the business field in Zion City have had their share of trouble with some of the fanatical residents of the religious community. The North Shore Electric company bought the equipment of the Zion City electrical department December 15, and has since been engaged in bringing the electric lighting and power system of the city up to the standard maintained by the company throughout the entire system it controls.

As there is not enough business in the city at present to justify opening an office there, the First State bank was made the agent of the corporation with authority to collect and receipt the bills of consumers. The Volivans of the White Dove city have made a strenuous objection to paying their bills at the bank because it is not run and controlled by their beloved general overseer. They have asked the company to permit them to pay their bills at the office of Voliva's private bank which he conducts in his store building.

The officials of the company are obdurate and insist that the objectors must either pay their bills at the First State bank or else make their remittance to the Waukegan office of the company. The corporation officials take the stand that they cannot recognize ten or more factions and accommodate them all by appointing their general overseers and faction leaders as agents for the collection of bills. They believe in treating all alike and insist that the place selected is controlled by non-partisan management and the Volivaites will have to pay their bills at the independent bank.

Commercial Trickeries.

In Cuba they fatten little pigs on coconuts, and bake them into Christmas turkeys, and fine they say they are. Pick out coconuts that are heavy with water and sound solid when struck together. In Barbados and Trinidad they plaster pitch over the monkey eyes to keep the nut from spoiling.

'Other End To.

"It's jest as much us poor folks' place to treat the rich right as 't is t'other way. Don't it help as much toward good feelin' between man and man for me to go a little out'n my way to give the boss a pleasant good mornin' as it does for the boss all ways to have to make the first break? The boss' got money; but that's no sign he don't need what money can't buy—and that's good-will."—Pa Flickinger's Folks.

Beware of "Getting Mad."

The tendency to fume and rage and brood over every untoward occurrence is the badge of ignorance, ugly nature and, as a rule, poor health. So, if you find yourself getting "mad" at people for slight cause, try to cure yourself for you are in danger of inviting nerve troubles that destroy brain and eyesight when age comes on.

BUY A LARGE TRACT

Chicago Stockmen Purchase Three Farms Near Warrenton

FORSHEEP FEEDING STATION

Land is Situated Between C. & N. W. Fast
Freight Line and C. M. & St. P. Road,
Both Roads to Build Sidings.

Taking advantage of a notoriously rising market for cattle and sheep, unnamed stockmen of Chicago will establish a giant feeding yard at Warrenton in Lake county between the Northwestern's west fast freight line and the St. Paul road.

Sidings will be built into the yards and sheep and cattle will be fed for the Chicago market to the capacity of the land under option.

There are now nearly 400 acres of land actually purchased and in the hands of the men who will handle the proposition while the two railroads named have promised to run sidings which will be necessary for the loading of the sheep and cattle for Chicago, which is less than an hour's run away.

The main reason for the apparently sudden but really deliberate action of the stockmen is the rising market and its accompanying chances of making money in handfolds.

Land purchased is as follows: James Kelly farm at Warrenton, 82 acres. Deal made through A. F. McKeown. Mrs. Bowles farm of 137 acres at Warrenton. Deal made through A. F. McKeown.

The Joseph Libal farm which these two tracts adjoin, 204 acres with a big warehouse and three buildings. Owned by a Chicago man now in automobile business. Purchaser is Hugh O. McCauley.

It is believed that Hugh O. McCauley may be back of the first two purchases as he positively is back of the third, that of the Libal farm. McCauley is a prominent stockman. All that A. F. McKeown will say about the unnamed purchasers of the first two tracts is that they are stockmen.

It is admitted that a feeding station is to be established. It is not stated whether the land will be used permanently for this or not.

The price paid per acre has been between $85 and $100 an acre and no higher rates have gone.

The nearest other feeding station is at Montgomery, Ill., where sheep are fed. Its capacity is 75,000 sheep alone. It is two hours or so out of Chicago.

BOARDING HOUSE AT CAMP LAKE CATCHES FIRE

An alarm of fire was sounded at the boarding house of the Knickerbocker Company at Camp Lake one day the latter part of the past week. The fire caught from around the cook stove and for a time indications were that the building would be destroyed but the fire was promptly located and after some work was extinguished.

As it was the greatest damage done to the hotel was by the boisterous efforts on the part of the boarders to save the hotel furnishings. The bedding etc. being thrown through the windows without stopping to raise the sash. It has been remarked that the panes of glass thus broken were worth more than the articles thrown out and taking altogether it does not pay to raise the cry of fire in an ice company's boarding house.

Woman's Danger Batteries.
A hypnotic eye, vulgarly known as the goo-goo, has long been considered one of the most valuable possessions of a woman. In the wise economy of nature it was given her instead of the swelling biceps of the opposite sex. From time immemorial it was considered perfectly ethical for her to exercise this power to the fullest extent, and to it society owes most of its pleasure and probably its very existence.

Harvesting a Fortune.
Relatives sought to have declared insane the millionaire who planted Michigan barrens with thousands of apple trees, but now the trees are harvesting a fortune and taking state fair prizes and the barrenness has been transferred to the relatives' codicils in the crazy man's will.

MILLINERY HINT FROM JAPAN

Poor Gentry Wear Immense Hats Under Which They Hide What They Consider Disgrace.

"Talking through one's hat" is customary in the literal sense for a certain class in Japan. Beside furnishing Americans with an opportunity for making this joke the komuso bids fair to furnish them something of yet more value—a new style in women's headgear. Rather, a modification of the Russian toque popular this winter.

The komuso are Japanese gentle-folk, who, having come to reduced circumstances, are compelled to earn a living as wandering minstrels. From a sense of shame they hide their heads and faces under wicker hats that come down to the shoulders and have a bit of lattice work in front to facilitate seeing and talking. If last summer's bee hive bonnet were made a few inches longer, the Japanese komuso effect would be gained. Or if milliners were unable to fill promptly the orders for the komuso toque, the purchaser need only buy a bee hive three sizes too large. This would answer the purpose quite as well.

Although the komuso toque in its native environment is untrimmed, effective Japanese ornaments could be devised for it, such as a miniature pagoda on the left side, or a reproduction of the typical Japanese bronze lantern on the crown. Perhaps it is misleading to say "the crown," for the hats are all crowns. There is no brim whatever.

For certain types of women, and it may be added, of men, the advantages of the komuso style of headgear are obvious.

Couldn't Appreciate a Joke.

That neither the oriental nor the Mohammedan mind can appreciate the American sense of humor was manifest on Thanksgiving day when "men away from home" sat down to dinner at the Central branch of the Young Men's Christian association, 1421 Arch street.

"To make the lonely ones feel better Charles W. Crist, who presided, insisted that every one make a brief speech. It was about time for the turkey to appear when a young Armenian began to describe the horrors of a Turkish massacre.

As soon as the spoke of the "bloody Turk" the name was tumultuously chanted, and cries of "Bring him on," "Revenge" and the like were heard. The Japanese and Chinese students present gazed wonderingly at the Armenian, who sat down quite ruffled.

The best efforts of the Americans to tell him what caused the demonstration about the "turk" failed to make him see the light.—Philadelphia Times.

Boys Punished in India.

Here is a method adopted by Hindu teachers to bring unruly Hindu boys to order after ordinary methods of punishment have failed. In most Hindu schools, as well as in Hindu households containing a number of boys, there is to be found a block of wood with a chain attached, and known as a "thundoo." This is riveted around the leg of the boy with the aid of the nearest blacksmith, or fastened strongly with twine, and kept there for a period ranging from a few hours to as many days, as the nature of the case may require. The boy is then exposed to the unsympathetic looks and jeers of other boys (and girls), who enjoy the fun immensely and follow the boy wherever he goes. The disgrace is keenly felt, and a second infliction of the "thundoo" is seldom found necessary.

Empress' Most Prized Jewel.

The German empress owns most wonderful jewelry, and among her treasures are diamonds valued at a quarter of a million pounds, many ropes of pearls and other costly trinkets. For all of these the kaiserin cares little, but she is very fond of a certain bracelet, which she never allows to go out of her possession. This bracelet was a present from the kaiser and it is composed of seven pieces, each of which contains a portrait of one of her children. In a heart-shaped locket attached to the bracelet is a miniature portrait of the kaiser himself.

Money in Circulation.

A rough estimate of the amount of money in circulation throughout the world on November 1 places the total at $15,550,000,000. This includes gold, silver and uncovered paper. Gold comprises nearly half of the entire world's currency. If it be estimated that about half of the fresh gold produced from year to year goes into the form of coined money there will have been approximately $400,000,000 added to the supply during the last two years.—Finance.

Ireland Becoming Prosperous.

A statement from the Irish department of agriculture says that in June of this year, as compared with the corresponding month of 1908, there was an increase of approximately $9,400,000 in deposits in Irish joint stock banks and of about $2,800,000 in savings banks deposits. The increase in post-office deposits on December 31, 1907, was $102,500, while the investments, etc., on which dividends are payable at the Bank of Ireland amounted to $6,000,000.

A PROBLEM FOR THE HARVARD BOY WONDER

DECLARE BOYCOTT ON MEAT

CLEVELANDERS WILL BAR ANIMAL FLESH 30 DAYS.

Wage Earners Plan to Aid Authorities in Probing High Cost of Living.

Cleveland, O.—Superintendents and foremen of 21 large Cleveland manufacturing concerns, to the number of 640, have taken a pledge to boycott meat for 30 days, and will extend it to two months if necessary.

In addition to agreeing to do without meat themselves, the superintendents and foremen have promised to induce as many as possible of the 7,000 employees under them to dispense with the food for the same period. If the employees enter into the pact approximately 30,000 Clevelanders will abstain from meat during the next month.

The pledge follows:

1. We as wage earners, are willing to assist both the state and the municipalities in probing into the high cost of living, particularly the cost of meats, which is prohibitive.
2. This agitation can best become effective by refraining from eating meat for a period of 30 days.
3. If this does not bring the price of meat within the means of poor people, then we will refrain from eating meat for 60 days.
4. We, citizens, do hereby ask our representatives in each councilman's district and the legislative bodies to keep this agitation uppermost in their minds and actions until the result manifests itself.
5. We ask the co-operation of all persons who are interested in fair play and the future of our otherwise prosperous country.
6. This self-denial to take effect January 17 and continue henceforth.

24 DROWNED IN SHIPWRECK

Steamer Czarina Goes on Coos Bay Near Mansfield, Ore.—Two of Crew Saved.

Mansfield, Ore.—Of 31 men on the steamer Czarina, which Wednesday night struck on the Coos bay bar and was wrecked, two have been rescued, and there is a possibility that five others, including Capt. Dugan and Harold Mills, will be saved. Harry Kentzell, first assistant engineer, was found unconscious in the breakers, and J. Robinson, second assistant, was washed ashore.

Several hours after Kentzell was rescued he regained consciousness and said that Capt. Dugan and Mills, the only passenger, had been bound to one of the masts. Robinson added that when the forward mast, to which he and five others had climbed, went by the board, the master, the first officer, Miller, and two seamen, were alive in the after rigging. These were the only ones left on the ship.

Cadets Guilty of Hazing.

Washington.—Three West Point cadets have been found guilty of hazing, it is reported here, and their dismissal will follow the approval of the sentence by the secretary of war, who is allowed no discretion in the matter. No announcement of the names of the three cadets will be made until Secretary Dickinson returns from Porto Rico.

WOULD RAISE THE MAINE

President Taft to Lend Support for Raising Sunken Battleship in Havana Harbor.

Washington.—President Taft, it is authoritatively learned, is in favor of raising the wreck of the American battleship Maine, which rests at the bottom of the harbor of Havana, in a friendly republic.

This attitude of the president is of the highest and perhaps decisive importance toward the solution for all time of the question which was permitted to remain unsolved during the administration of President McKinley and his successor, President Roosevelt, who was assistant secretary of the navy for some months prior to the Spanish-American war.

President Taft, in other words, will lend his support to a bill introduced in congress for the raising of the wreck and when it is raised all the world will know whether the explosion which destroyed the battleship originated inside or outside of the vessel.

President Taft evidently does not fear the result.

Rear Admiral Sigbee, who commanded the warship on the night she was blown up, is in favor of raising the vessel.

ISSUE WARRANTS FOR FIVE

Prominent Pittsburghers Are Charged with Conspiracy and Bribery in Connection with Graft Scandal.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The storm which has threatened Pittsburg politically for more than a year, has broken with fury. Since the first arrests of grafting councilmen December 22, 1908, there have been deep rumblings about the "men higher up." Warrants were issued Friday for five of the most important men in Pittsburg as follows:

Max G. Leslie, county delinquent tax collector and right-hand man to State Senator W. M. Flynn, charges conspiracy, perjury and bribery; $15,000 ball furnished by Senator Flynn.

Edward H. Jennings, millionaire president of the Columbia National bank of Pittsburg, president of the Pure Oil Company, president of the Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburg and head of the E. H. Jennings Bros. Company. Conspiracy; $10,000 ball furnished by a brother.

Frank A. Griffin, former vice-president and cashier of the Columbia National bank of Pittsburg. Conspiracy; $10,000 ball furnished by brother of President Jennings.

Frank F. Nicola, head of the monster North Bros. interests, considered the biggest business man in Pittsburg, and many times a millionaire. Conspiracy.

Charles Stewart, business man and former member of Pittsburg council. Conspiracy; $10,000 ball furnished by William Schempp of Pittsburg.

South Dakota Corn Show.

Mitchell, S. D.—One of the biggest agricultural events of the year in South Dakota, the state corn show, opened here Monday and attracted farmers from all over that part of the northwest. How the Borgias Lured Victims to Death Told by Accomplice—Confesses to Killing of Arch Murderess and Three Children.

St. Louis.—According to a copyrighted story in the Post-Dispatch Thursday Ray Lamphere, who died recently in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City while serving a term for setting fire to the home of Mrs. Bella Guinness, at Laporte, Ind., did not carry the secrets of the chancel farm to the grave with him.

The confession was made to Rev. Dr. E. A. Schell, formerly pastor of the Laporte Methodist church, now president of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant, Ia.

Lamphere, according to the confession, had a guilty knowledge of the murder of three men in the Guinness home during the time he lived there, about eight months in 1907, and he assisted Mrs. Guinness in disposing of the bodies of the three men.

He said he thought he had not received as much of the profits of the transaction as he considered himself entitled to, and he went to the farmhouse at night with a woman, chloroformed Mrs. Guinness, her three children and Jennie Olson. He and the woman then searched the house, finding between $80 and $70. The light they used was a candle, and they left the house without knowing they had left behind a spark that soon burst into flames.

Mrs. Guinness' method of killing her victims, Lamphere said, was first to chloroform them as they slept and then if the drug did not itself kill, to sever the heads with an ax. Each time a man was to be murdered, according to Lamphere, she sent him to purchase chloroform. Lamphere said he saw one of them killed and aided in burying all three. These men were Andrew Helgelein and probably Ole Budsberg and Tonness Petersen Lien. Lien, Lamphere thought, was the third husband of Mrs. Guinness. At the time of the Lamphere trial it was thought Jennie Olson had been killed by Mrs. Guinness. Lamphere, however, details how Mrs. Guinness had secreted her in the house after she was chloroformed by Lamphere and his accomplice.

A few nights after they came back there was another burying. Lamphere received money once more from Mrs. Guinness, and he said he became the trusted ally of Mrs. Guinness.

SUSPEND S. B. CHAPIN & CO.

Brokerage Firm Is Suspended Because of Its Action in Rock Island Flurry.

New York.—Simon B. Chapin, head of the stock brokerage firm of S. B. Chapin & Co., with offices at No. 111 Broadway, was suspended from the privileges of the stock exchange Wednesday by the governing committee for a period of 60 days, and his partner, F. D. Countess, was suspended for 30 days, as a result of the action of the firm on December 27 last in executing orders during the sensational flurry in Rock Island common stock, which culminated on that day in a semi-panic.

Coincident with this action Richard A. Jackson of Chicago, president of the Rock Island Company, the holding corporation of the Rock Island railroad, resigned his office as well as the chairmanship of the executive committee.

PASS WHITE SLAVE BILL

House Adopts Drastic Measure Which Will Go Far Toward Breaking Up Infamous Traffic.

Washington.—Representative Sabath of Chicago scored against Representative Mann when the Bennett-Sabath white slave bill was passed by the house Wednesday. That action, in effect, sends the Mann bill on the same subject to the house waste basket.

The Bennett-Sabath bill is perhaps the most drastic measure of the kind ever adopted by any state or nation, and if it is passed by the senate will go far toward breaking up the white slave traffic. It makes it a felony to import any person for immoral purposes, and then provides that any alien found in any disorderly house, or profiting in any way therefrom, may be deported.

THWART MILITARY CONSPIRACY

PLOT AGAINST SPANISH CABINET IS NIPPED IN BUD.

Was Fomented by Former Minister of Interior—40 Officers Implicated Sent to Fortresses.

Paris.—Dispatches from Madrid indicate that the government thwarted a military conspiracy, fomented by the friends of Juan de Lacerda y Penafiel, former minister of the interior, against the Liberal cabinet.

The building occupied by the military club was surrounded by the police and eighty armed officers in the building were arrested.

Forty of the officers implicated have been sent to various provincial fortresses pending trial by court martial. The colonels of the Princes' and Queen's regiments have been relieved of their commands by royal decree.

The origin of the trouble was the complaint against the system of advancement for army officers which was made upon the recommendation of persons of high rank, among whom Pignatelli was the leader.

The correspondent of the Tempo describes the situation in Madrid as critical. The cabinet is between two fires. On the one hand are the Republicans and Radicals who are attacking the army and at the same time charging Premier Moret with employing the methods of his predecessor; while on the other hand is the army enraged at the campaign of the government against it.

There are rumors also of a Carlist uprising, and it is understood that Don Jaime of Bourbon, the Spanish pretender, is preparing to issue a manifesto describing the ruin of Spain since the dethronement of his great grandfather, attacking the free-thinkers and Protestants and urging a revival of Catholic unity as the only means for Spanish regeneration.

Despatches from Barcelona report much excitement there. The troops are held in readiness in their barracks.

PINCHOT ISSUES STATEMENT

Declares That Great Issue Is Whether Special Interests or the People Shall Rule.

Washington.—"The conservation of natural resources and the conservation of popular governments are both at stake. The one needs conservation no less than the other."

This statement epitomizes the formal announcement made public by Gifford Pinchot, who was recently removed as chief of the forest service. The former official declared the great moral issue that now faces the country is not the loss of natural resources so much as whether special interests or the people shall rule.

The statement in part, is as follows:

"At this time I have no comment to make on recent events. Whether in or out of the government service I propose to stay in the fight for conservation and equal opportunity. Every moment and measure, from whatever source, that tends to advance conservation and promote government by men for human welfare, I shall try to help.

DRAFTS TAFT'S CHARTER BILL

Creates Form of Holding Company Under National Charter—Rules Laid Down.

Washington.—In a bill of 21 sections Attorney General Wickersham has embodied the ideas of President Taft and his cabinet regarding a system of federal incorporation of business enterprises.

The principal feature of the measure will be the creation of a form of holding company under a national charter which may control the business of subordinate companies organized under state laws. Proper limitations will be imposed to prevent the embarkation of corporations in the business of discounting bills, receiving deposits and issuing notes.

90,000 AMERICAN SETTLERS GO TO CANADA

THE YEAR 1909 HAS SHOWN AN INCREASE OF OVER EIGHTY PER CENT IN AMERICAN SETTLEMENT.

Recent advices from Canada, our next door neighbor, the neighboring country across the boundary line, are that upwards of ninety thousand settlers from the United States went into Western Canada during the past year, most of them for the purpose of taking up and settling upon the vacant lands, 160 acres of which are given free by the government, and lands adjoining held by railway and land companies are selling at from nine to fifteen and twenty dollars per acre. Even if thirty and forty dollars per acre were paid, the price would be low, as the lands produce wonderfully, and at these higher figures there is a large interest on the money and labor invested. The ninety thousand settlers of last year, followed about sixty thousand of the previous year, and for several years the number has been running into these large figures. There must be a reason for it. It may be found in the single phrase, "they are satisfied." Nothing attracts people more than the success of others, and the news of this reaching other thousands, causes them to investigate. The investigation in this case is always satisfactory. The splendid land of Iowa, of Indiana, of Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and other States has risen to a high value, and it is worth every dollar asked for it. But there is not room now for all on these lands. With the ever increasing demand for grain, there comes the ever increasing demand for land. Canada is the only country on the continent in a position to supply it. Land there that costs, say fifteen dollars an acre, produces on a reasonable calculation, 25 bushels of wheat to the acre, or about $20.00. The most liberal calculation as to cost makes the cost to produce $7.50 per acre, leaving a balance of $12.50 per acre. The $7.50 carries good wages for the farmer, and all other conceivable contingencies. With conditions like this, covering the entire area of about 800,000 square miles, it is readily understood why 90,000 Americans should follow the sixty thousand of the previous year. Canadian Government Agencies at different points in the Union are always ready to give information regarding the free homestead lands, ready to advise the settler as to the districts which would suit him best.

President Taft Sends Special Message to Congress Recommending Prevention of Land Frauds, Control of Water Power, Fostering of Soils and Kindred Subjects

The present statutes, except so far as they dispose of the precious metals and the agricultural products, are not adapted to carry out the modern view of the best disposition of public lands to private ownership, under conditions offering on the one hand sufficient inducement to private capital to take the land over for proper development with restrictive conditions on the other which shall secure to the public that character of control which will prevent a monopoly or misuse of the land by the individual owner. The secretary of the Interior to withdraw from the operation of existing statutes tracts of land, the disposition of which under such statutes would be defective, has not been authorized, and a clear or satisfactory. This power has been exercised in the interest of the public, with the hope that congress might affirm the action of the executive by the adoption of new regulations. Unfortunately, congress has not thus far fully acted on the recommendations of the executive, and the question as to what the executive is to do in the future is a very serious one. It seems to me that it is the duty of congress now, by a statute, to validate the withdrawals which have been made by the secretary of the Interior and the president, and to authorize the president to temporarily to withdraw lands pending submission to congress of recommendations as

A work of the utmost importance to inform and instruct the public on this chief branch of the conservation of our resources is being carried on successfully in the department of agriculture; but it ought not to escape public attention that state action in addition to that of the department of agriculture (as for instance in the drainage of swamp lands) is essential to the best treatment of the soils in the manner above indicated. Stop the Leakages

One of the reasons why the express companies pay such enormous dividends, while the government must meet a heavy deficit in the postoffice department every year, is the abuse of the franking privilege by members of Congress. In addition to the loss sustained by the government, a large proportion of the tons of public documents sent out by congressmen go into the waste basket unread. Great quantities of seeds are also franked to their destinations, but it is not supposed that very many of them are planted. It should be the policy of the government to trace out the postal leakages, just as a business concern would do if it was running behind.

Material for a Plot

The "fight against Cannon" has the germ of a comic opera plot. All the members of the house know "Uncle Joe" through and through. Many of them pretend to hate him. Yet they elect and re-elect him as their Speaker, even while denouncing him as a tyrant, a czar, a despot, a squelcher of free speech and a trampler on parliamentary equities. If they don't like Cannonism there is nothing that can force it upon them. Yet they repeatedly embrace it, apparently for the mere purpose of having something to scold about. W. S. Gilbert would find rich material for his humor in this persistency in repeating a fantastic program. There is a lot of humor in the "fight against Cannon." Mr. Gilbert could make both fun and money by showing it up in a libretto for a musical comedy.

Raise More Hens

The cackle of the hen is becoming more and more prevalent, not only in the United States, but in other countries, and is a welcome sound everywhere, notwithstanding the general crusade against noises. The hunt for eggs goes on apace, and so eager is the quest that biddy's loud proclamation of her industry in adding to the visible supply strikes the human ear as a message of glad tidings.

Canada is in line with the rest of the world in the matter of egg production and consumption, especially consumption; for her export of eggs, which were formerly large, have shrunk to almost nothing. United States Consul Frank Deedmeier, stationed at Charlottetown, reports that in 1901, the last year for which census statistics are available, Canada had nearly 18,000,000 head of poultry, and that in 1900 her production of eggs was over 84,000,000 dozen, valued at more than $10,275,000. That was ten years ago, and if the figures could be compiled now they would be much larger.

Year by year Canada has fewer and fewer eggs to spare. In 1904 she exported 5,780,316 dozen, mostly to Great Britain, and in 1909 only 558,182 dozen, a decrease of 5,222,134 dozen. In 1904 Canada imported 972,249 dozen eggs, and in 1909 1,146,041 dozen, which shows that its home products falls short of supplying its home demands. The Canadian imports of eggs from the United States during the same fiscal years were as follows: In 1904, 936,917 dozen; in 1909, 1,102,954 dozen, showing that nearly all its foreign egg supply is drawn from the United States.

Prince Edward Island is a great producer of eggs, the yield in 1909 being estimated at 4,000,000 dozen, of which 3,000,000 dozen were or will be shipped to Quebec and the other maritime provinces, to England and the United States. The price of eggs has advanced in this province during the past ten years from 9 cents per dozen in 1900 to 20 cents per dozen in 1909. These figures, taken in connection with the high prices prevailing in the United States, show that North America comes far short of producing as many eggs as its people could consume. Yet the hens are doing nobly, the only trouble being that there ought to be a few million more of them.

Australia and Bulgaria are going more extensively into the poultry business, and Russia is making strides in the same direction. In 1899 Russia produced 1,686,000,000 eggs and killed for food 10,294,000 fowls. In 1909 the number of eggs produced had increased to 2,454,000,000, while the number of fowls killed decreased to 2,700,000. The figures for 1909 are partly estimated, but they show that the Russian hen has come to be more highly valued for her eggs than for her meat.

The egg problem, in fact, seems to be world-wide. The supply, in proportion to the demand for consumption, is constantly decreasing. Eggs, once classed as common and cheap food, are rising to the rank of an expensive luxury. There is, of course, only one remedy: Keep more hens. They always pay their way, and in the present state of the market they are great money-makers. Clearly, the poultry industry is worthy of expansion as a source of profit and a feeder of the human race.

Do You Get Up With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular 50-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ROYAL TACT AND COURTESY

King Stanislas of Poland Proved Himself Possessed of Real Nobleness of Heart.

It is a great thing to be a king, and an even greater inheritance for a monarch to have always at his command tact and courtesy in addressing an inferior. Not all are fortunate enough to have it, but as Mme. Vigee LeBrun describes Stanislas, the unfortunate king of Poland, he is seen to have been the happy possessor of this more than royal charm. His kindness was unequalled. I remember receiving myself a proof of it, which even now causes me to feel ashamed. Sometimes, when I am painting, I seem to lose sight of everybody and everything except my model, which has often caused me to behave in a very rude manner to those who happen to disturb me when at work.

One morning, being engaged in finishing a portrait, the king of Poland came to see me. I had heard the sound of horses at the door and guessed who it might be, but I was so much absorbed in my work that I felt vexed, so much so, indeed, that when he opened my door I called out, "I am not at home!"

The king said not a word, but put on his coat again and departed. As soon as I had quitted my palette I remembered how I had behaved, and felt so ashamed that I went that same evening to see the king, to make my excuses and to ask for forgiveness.

"How you greeted me this morning!" said he, as soon as he saw me, and added: "I can quite understand that when one disturbs an artist who is very busy it is annoying to her, so believe me, I do not feel at all vexed with you."

He made me remain to supper, all my behavior being forgiven.—Youth's Companion.

HAD BEEN WAITING FOR HIM

Newly Engaged Girl Had Decided Variation on "This Is So Sudden" Formula.

"Women are the vain things," said the moody railroad clerk who had quarreled with "his girl," and couldn't help telling about it. Then he went on: "I've been calling on her a good while, but to-day when I got hold of her hand I noticed her third finger was swollen. I found a tiny ring on it cut deep into the flesh. She told me her grandmother, when she was dying, gave her the ring. The girl was seven then, but she's 18 now, and she never took it off. I found out the ring hurt her, so I pulled out a flat key and a nail file. I got the thin, flat key under the ring and then filed across it. She said it didn't hurt her, but as I was nearly done she fainted. I nearly fainted, too, but I got a glass of water and spilled it over her and she came to slowly. By that time I had the little ring off. After a while she held up her hand and looked at the fearfully swollen digit, and tears came in her eyes. 'Jim,' she said, half angry, 'you've spoiled my hand. How'll I ever cover up that awful finger? It looks deformed. Jim, and you're to blame.' "Never mind, little girl," says I. "I'll get you an emerald engagement ring to cover it. How'll that do?" "She didn't say 'This is so sudden,' But she did say: 'Why, Jim, you're awful slow. I expected you to say that a year ago.' "And then we quarreled."

The minister said: "No, I thank you," and taking one from his pocket proceeded to light it.

Pegging the Frogs.

In France, a hundred and fifty years ago, the rich people living in the country, obliged men and boys among the poor to walk about their lakes and ponds at night and throw stones at the frogs who croaked and made a disturbing noise. It wasn't fun for the boys after the first night or two, and the frogs also had something to complain of.

Barred Dancing in Churches.

One of the popes in the Middle Ages had to prohibit dances in the churches. In 858 the bishop of Orleans condemned the dancing of women in the presbytery at festivals. In 1209 theatrical dances in the churches were forbidden, and two church councils not long afterward condemned all dancing in churches or churchyards.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Derring, returning from a winter in the woods to his mother's farm home, is overtaken by his uncle, accompanied by his eccentric wife, coming to pay a visit at the farm. Aunt Jerusha's questions about Emily's situation, supposed to be Derring's sweetheart, reveal the fact that she is to marry another. Disappointment stimulates Derring's ambition, and under the advice of Seth Kinney, a hermit of the woods, he resolves to fit himself for college. Kinney teaches him Greek and he passes his entrance examinations triumphantly, winning the approval of the professor. Four years in college obliterate the memory of Emily. Derring begins journalistic work in Chicago, where he meets Helen Gordon, an artist. Derring is promoted to art critic on his paper. Helen refuses to marry him and hamper both their careers, but they enter into a companionship contract. Helen suffers ill effects from sketching on the lake shore in January. Illness brings her into closer relationship with Richard. Derring is called home by the illness of Seth Kinney.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

Throughout the journey the thought stayed with him; and when, once or twice, he felt the dread of danger near, he even rejoiced that distance could not mar the closeness of love. The longing for her safety that stole from his heart would, in another man, have been a prayer.

CHAPTER XV.

Derring found Seth watching for his coming, and saw at a glance that he was very ill. Even a less practiced eye could not have mistaken the signs. The hands that lay outside the faded patchwork cover were yellow and wrinkled; the veins stood out, a network of cords, across the backs. They were the hands of an old man. Richard noted their feebleness as they closed eagerly around his own strong, firm fingers. Seth seemed to him to have aged 20 years since he saw him last.

"I am glad you have come, Dick. I was afraid you would not get here. I wanted to see you again. My life has been a failure. It's hard to say that when you come to die," he rambled on. "Yours won't be a failure, Dick. And I helped to make it. I thought perhaps I should die easier if I could look at you again and see something that I had helped to do in the world."

After this first greeting he said no more of the comfort of Richard's presence. But it was evident in the glance of his eyes as they followed the young man about the room and in his restlessness when Richard was absent for a time.

Richard saw that his place was here as long as Seth needed him, and he quietly made arrangements to stay for an indefinite time. He established himself as caretaker and nurse. Young as he was, his experience of life had been deep enough for him to understand that it is not often that one man can do for another what his mere presence did for Seth.

The old man did not speak again of himself or of approaching death. But he questioned Richard eagerly about his work and the life he led. Every detail of it interested him. It was as if he were listening to the story of what his own life might have been. And Richard, understanding by a subtle sympathy what it meant to him, gave a minute account of the office and the men, the hurry and rush of the city, and the haste and true hospitality of the social life.

A stranger looking into the room would not have guessed that it was soon to be the chamber of death. Laughter often interrupted the recital. Richard had often fancied that when he came to die he should not want the humor of life taken from him. And the account of his Chicago life was not demoralized for a dying man. Seth, listening, seemed to gain a quiet strength of soul as his physical strength failed.

The story of Helen and his love for her was too closely interwoven with the life of the year to be omitted, even had Richard cared to do so. Little by little he had told it all. Seth listened eagerly and questioned Dick closely. He made him describe her minutely—her personal appearance, her characteristics, her likes and dislikes, her work—everything that concerned her. As Richard talked of her, the older man would watch his face—seeking something. Then a smile of content would cross his face and he would close his eyes as if asleep. But when Richard stopped he would say, "I'm listening."

One day when they had been talking of her he asked Richard to open a leather trunk that stood at the foot of the bed and hand him a box that he would find there.

As he lifted the lid of the trunk the young man knew that he was looking into the grave of Seth's love. It was filled with letters and old-fashioned trifles, evidently keep-sakes. A long-winded glove and a riding whip lay across the top of a small box. Carefully Richard lifted it from its place and put it in Seth's hands. Then he turned away to the window and stood looking out while the old man opened it. Richard's eyes were full of tears for a love dead 50 years. But Seth's were clear and tender as he called him to his side.

"Here, Dick, I want her to have this. You must put it on her finger. Tell her it does not bind her to any promise"—for Richard had told him. "It is from me. She is a woman. She will understand that I should like her to wear it," he mused.

It was a diamond in an old-fashioned setting, the stone large and beautifully cut. Richard held it in his hand, surprised by its beauty.

"How dared you keep anything so valuable here?"

"There was no danger. No one would look for brilliants in such a setting." The words were marked by a quiet smile of irony and a glance at the room.

Richard's glance followed his. The bare pine floor with its one strip of carpeting, the few rough chairs, the kitchen stove at one end of the room, and the bed, with its faded quilt, at the other. No, there had been no danger. Only the rows of books, piled two and three deep on the shelves, told that the occupant of the room was other than a rough farmer. A bowl of trailing partridge-berries that Richard had brought from the woods yesterday stood on the western sill. The setting sun fell across them and they lightened the room, giving it a touch of refinement. Otherwise it was unchanged from the room in which Richard had received the Greek grammar six years ago.

Did Not Speak Again of Himself or of Approaching Death.

Then it had been to him a plain, rough room with a certain homely comfort. Now it was the picturesque setting of a lonely life. The furniture was rough; but the roughness had artistic charm. Seth must have had, consciously or unconsciously, an artist's appreciation of the beautiful. As Richard looked about the room, his sense of the pathos of the life that was passing away here deepened to a feeling of kinship and sympathy. The long years of loneliness that were drawing to a close were his own.

It was Seth who broke the silence—low and half-musically. "You do well to love her, Dick. And she will be worthy of it. But if she is not—you must not stop loving. Love something—some one—any one. Never stop loving—for your soul's sake. That was my mistake. One woman refused to love me. I shut myself off from all love. That was my mistake. Mistake!" he said slowly. "I wonder if there are such things? Well, it spoiled my life. I didn't know then that the human heart must love—or die. He that would save his life must lose it—in loving."

The twilight settled down upon the room. The old man did not speak again. He lay with half-closed eyes looking across the shining red berries to the western sky.

Richard sat quietly by his side. He did not undress or lie down. He knew, by a subtle intuition, that a guest would come before the morning, and he waited for his coming. But so gentle was his step when he came across the floor in the early dawn that Richard only knew by a slight tremble of the thin fingers resting in his that he had come and gone, bearing with him an immortal soul.

Was it immortal? He stepped out into the cold light of the early morning. He turned to the east, where a faint flush of red was touching the gray sky. "He that would save his life must lose it—in loving," he repeated softly.

CHAPTER XVI.

Before Richard returned to Chicago it was found that Seth's liking for him had taken practical form. He had made a will giving to Richard all the property of which he died possessed.

The fortune was not large, but enough to pay his college debt, raise the mortgage, and leave a comfortable sum for his mother—enough, indeed, to make her a woman of importance in the neighborhood.

She protested in a mild way when Richard proposed to settle the money on her. But he had grown too masterful for her. In the end she enjoyed the feeling of importance that an assured income gave her. She refused to accompany him to Chicago. It was all "out west" to her and very far away.

Derring found himself speeding towards Chicago, wondering whether this unexpected turn of fortune would make marriage nearer for him. But when they met he did not ask her. They assumed the old easy relation as if there had been no separation. Life sped on with days too full of content to ask promises from the future.

When the time of parting came in June he found that he could let her go with less dread than he had thought possible. The time would not be long, and with the increased freedom that had come to him in money affairs he could run east during the vacation. If trouble came to her, or harm, he could be with her in a few hours. It was with light heart that he saw her go.

He had accompanied her to the train and provided her with all the comforts for the journey that love could suggest. Between the leaves of one of the books was tucked a letter. He had not told her it was there. She would find it. The train began to move. "Good-by," he said, hurriedly, "I shall come to you if you need me. In any case I shall see you soon."

He sat up late, working on an article for the next day. When at last, tired and exhausted, he threw himself on the bed, he fell at once into a sound sleep. He slept long and heavily. He started up with a sense of suffocation.—Where was he?—What was the matter?—Was the house on fire? Before he was fairly awake he knew that the room was quiet—so quiet that he could hear the ticking of his watch. Then an awful fear came upon him—she was in danger. Great God, how the feeling mastered him! He sprang up and looked at his watch—three o'clock. He dressed quickly and went out-of-doors. He could not stay in the house. It suffocated him. He must move about or go insane.

Instinctively he turned towards the lake. A light, fresh breeze greeted him as he came to the breakwater. He lifted his face to meet it. It would blow these foolish notions out of his brain. He had been dreaming and had been frightened by his own fancies.

He slackened his pace, listening to the soft lapping of the water against the breakwater, and looking up to the stars. Then again fear took possession of him and he quickened his step until at last he broke into a run, driven by an awful, nameless dread.

Thus he alternated between hope and fear until the first faint line of dawn appeared across the water. As he stood looking at it, longing for day to break, a sudden peace came upon him. He drew a quick breath as the tension gave way. She was safe once more. This time he did not question his mood. He knew with quiet certainty that all was well with her.

ILLUSTRATION OF FEED BOX SELF-EXPLANATORY

Full List of Dimensions that Should Make It Easy Matter to Construct—For Feeding Meal Place Strip Around.

Plan for Feed Box.

The illustration herewith of a feed box is self-explanatory and with the following list of dimensions should be easy to build: The legs are made from 4x4's 34 inches on the high side, sawing a bevel at one end of 12 inches; the slides are 2x12 inches; the length of the box is eight feet. The bottom is made by joining seven common floor boards, generally using fence flooring clear of knots as possible. The best way to lay the bottom is to take 16-foot fence boards laying the two end 2x4 cross pieces four inches from the end. Across the center lay two other eight inches apart, sawing the bottom in two to make the bottoms for two boxes. The 2x4 across the center, which is used for supporting the center of the bottom, should be made of hard wood. Clamps go around this 2x4 and over the top of the box. Use a 16-inch clamp, such as commonly used for building hay racks; bore through the 2x4, place the clamp bottom side up over the side of the box and draw it up tight. The lower edge of the 2x12 used for slides should be placed to a bevel to match the bottom of the box.

For feeding meal it would be well to place a corn crib strip 1x4 inches around the top of the box. This will prevent the wind from blowing the meal out, as it projects over on the inside two inches.

POTATOES AS STOCK FOOD

When Properly Fed They Are Nutritious and Very Fattening for Both Cattle and Sheep.

(BY W. R. GILBERT.)

Potatoes owe their food value principally to their high proportion of carbohydrates, which are found in potatoes in the form of starch.

They contain nearly three times the quantity of carbohydrates found in an equal weight of turnips.

Potatoes vary a good deal in composition, not only as regards different varieties, but as regards the same variety grown on different soils.

Potatoes grown on strong soil contain more albuminoids than those from light land.

When they are of this composition they are firm when cooked, and are said to "have a bone in them." These are the most nutritious class of potatoes.

Potatoes are more suitable for feeding pigs than for any other kind of stock.

Their high proportion of starch makes it necessary to mix them with food of a more albuminoid and fibrous character when given to cattle and horses.

Unless they are mixed with such food they are liable to produce colic; but when fed in proper mixture there is no more fattening food grown on the farm than potatoes.

When the potatoes are withdrawn the cattle lose in condition at once and take some time to make it up again.

When potatoes are diseased it is the albuminoids that decay. The starch remains unchanged, and if the decay has not gone too far potatoes that are diseased may be used for stock feeding, but such potatoes should never be fed raw.

If a large number of potatoes are found to be touched with disease at lifting time they may be cooked, and if salted and packed firmly in barrels they will keep for some time if the air is excluded.

The flesh-producing qualities of potatoes are destroyed in proportion as the disease has destroyed the albuminoids, but the carbohydrates are fully capable of performing their work of keeping up the animal heat and adding to the fat.

It Pays to Caponize.

A capon bears the same relation to a rooster as a steer to a bull, and as bull meat is not equal to steer meat, so are roosters not equal to capons.

When cockerels become capons they cease to grow combs and wattles, do not crow and fight, grow much faster and finer flesh and bring more money than ordinary chickens.

If a cock weighs ten pounds a capon will weigh 15 and bring three to four times the price, $125 often being paid for 100 capons.

It certainly pays to caponize surplus cockerels. A set of tools, with full instructions for using, costs about $2.50 and only ordinary skill is required. With a little practice the operation can be quickly and safely performed. For caponizing, cockerels must be less than six weeks old and weigh a pound or more.

Care of Pigeons.

Though people have an idea that pigeons are very hardy and can be kept with little or no attention, the facts are that unless their food is of good quality, and their houses are kept clean, they are subject to many diseases. Pigeons are naturally very cleanly, and when allowed their liberty select only the best food and the varieties that please them, but when they are confined we must select these things for them if we wish to succeed.

Breaking Colts.

A good way to begin to break a colt is to make a stall for it and tie and feed it in the stall daily. Feeding while you handle the young animal is one of the very best ways of winning its confidence. Use an extra heavy halter on the colt from the first. If it early learns that it cannot break a halter it will go through life with that delusion, much to the profit of the owner.

STALL WITH MOVABLE FLOOR

A stall with movable wooden floor and fastening for the same. The advantage of this design will be appreciated in winter when the concrete is too cold for the comfort of cows. Two iron pins set in the concrete floor near the front corners of the stall keep it in place.

HER POINT OF VIEW.

Sweet Maid—You must remember that ours was a summer engagement.

The Man—That means, if you see anyone you like better, you'll break it?

Sweet Maid—Yes.

The Man—And if I see anyone I like better—

Sweet Maid—I'll sue you for breach of promise.

SOFT, WHITE HANDS

May be Obtained in One Night.

For preserving the hands as well as for preventing redness, roughness, and chapping, and imparting that velvety softness and whiteness much desired by women Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, is believed to be superior to all other skin soaps. For those who work in corrosive liquids, or at occupations which tend to injure the hands, it is invaluable.

Treatment.—Bathe and soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, and in severe cases spread the Cuticura Ointment on thin pieces of old linen or cotton. Wear during the night old, loose gloves, or a light bandage of old cotton or linen to protect the clothing from stain. For red, rough, and chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, and shapeless nails with painful finger ends, this treatment is most effective. Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world, Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass.

Fight Against Plague Goes On.

Although the survey of the past year's anti-tuberculosis work shows that much has been done, the reports from all parts of the country indicate that this year the amount of money to be expended, and the actual number of patients that will be treated will be more than double that of the past year. For instance, special appropriations have been made in the various municipalities for next year's anti-tuberculosis work, aggregating $3,976,500. In addition to these appropriations over $4,000,000 has been set aside by the different state legislatures for the campaign against tuberculosis this year. Besides these sums, a large number of the present existing institutions and associations are planning enlargements of their work, and new organizations are being formed daily.

After the Hunt.

Provided with some trophies of the chase in the shape of rabbits, Rev. Sanford C. Hearn, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Yonkers, proceeded to dress them for dinner in the parsonage cellar. His small son watched the father's work with interest. Going upstairs, the youngster called his mother.

"Oh, mamma," said he, "what do you suppose papa is doing?"

"I can't guess, child. What is he doing?"

"Well, he's just skinning, shaving and cutting up cats."

Gave Himself Away.

"Michael," familiarly inquired the employer, thinking he had seen his employe carrying one of the banners in the St. Patrick's parade of the day previous, in which procession the Irishman had laid off work to march, "didn't I see you carrying something in the parade yesterday?"

"Yes," admitted Michael, blushing scarlet, "but Oh had no suspicion me bottle made me hip pocket stick out so much!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

WHEN DINNER COMES One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Tonn grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby."

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner."

"My 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Uncertain What Was Wrong

Nervous Man Worried Whether the Clock's Works or His Own Required Attention.

A nervous little man stepped briskly into a jewelry store with a medium-sized clock under his wing. He placed the chronometer on the counter, turned the hands around to about one minute of 12 o'clock, and told the expert behind the counter to listen.

"It keeps perfect time," the customer said, "but I want to find out if you notice anything wrong with the way it strikes."

The jeweler listened. "There's nothing wrong," he replied with a grin, after the clock had struck, "except that she strikes thirteen instead of twelve. That can easily be remedied." The customer looked as relieved as if he'd just awakened from a bad dream.

"That's just what I've always thought ever since we've had the clock," he burst forth. "I've always felt sure it struck thirteen. But no one else in the family ever spoke of it, and I was afraid to say anything about it for fear there was something wrong with my own works. Well, it's worth the price of having the thing repaired just to find out I was right."

Wonderful Clocks.

Five wheels and a small battery virtually constitute the mechanism of a wonderful clock just invented in England. It will run three years without attention, and at the end of that time all that is required is to attach a new battery.

Another new English clock enables the possessor to ascertain at a glance the mean time, the meridian and relative position of every part of the empire, besides being able to witness the actual speed and direction of the earth's rotation. The motive power is a clock in the base of the stand, and the apparatus requires winding only once a week.

COCKTAILS SERVED IN CHINA

A Landlord on the Road to the Great Wall Has Learned How to Make Beverage.

When you leave the train at Nankon, 27 miles from Peking, and make your way toward the Great Wall of China, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, you proceed along a dusty road in summer and a sea of mud during the rains. The journey is on donkeys or in chairs carried by coolies.

In the middle of the Nankon pass there is a Chinese inn where the caravans halt. The manager offers travelers accommodations according to Chinese customs, but European beds are placed in the dais in the compartments, and it is even possible to procure a bottle of champagne or a glass of beer before retiring.

In fact, in many ways the enterprising host has an eye for business. He has learned how to mix a cocktail and travelers can procure baths. These Chinese inns are found beyond the wall on the road to Kalgan, where the railway will run in the near future.

As you get further inland European comforts and ideas of civilization depart, but it is possible almost anywhere along the main roads to purchase soda water. The inns are invariably built in the form of a square. At one side distinguished travelers and Europeans stop, and opposite the coolies and servants live. The chairs, carts and wheelbarrows are always placed in the quadrangle.

Sunflower Seeds.
In some countries, notably in the Russian provinces north of the Caucasus, the sunflower serves other purposes besides ornamenting gardens with its huge golden bosses. The seeds are used to make oil, which is employed in the manufacture of soap and in cooking. The stems and leaves are burned and the ashes used to make potash. Last year the sunflower factories of the Caucasus produced 15,000 tons of potash.
